Subject: increased fees

Hello, while I do not really appreciate fee increases, I can understand that it costs more to run your business. However I do have a comment related to costs that I would like to submit. I have two Charlottetown houses, each of which has a small rental apartment. Since I find the bins unattractive, and wishing to minimize the pickup effort, I opted to place just one set of bins at each property (one black, one green to serve the main residence as well as the tenant, instead of four in total). There are no issues with capacity and I am training my tenants to be very careful in sorting, so I feel the two bins (instead of four) is much more efficient for IWMC and looks better at the property. However I continue to pay for bins for both units at both properties. Is there any way that concessions can be made for small landlords such as myself to acknowledge the greater efficiency in pickup, and fewer bins in circulation overall?
Thank you for your consideration.
