Dear Cheryl Bradley:

I am against the proposed rate increases by Maritime Electric. Maritime Electric is a business that needs to take care of their own operational business expenses, instead of trying to pass their own expenses on to customers. Maritime Electric is never willing to give their investors a lower amount, during times of higher costs for running a business, but that should be how it is. Maritime Electric is always trying to get government money or pass extra costs on to their customers. Maritime Electric needs to be responsible for its own business costs. Customers are and have already been paying high premiums for this electricity. Customers are already paying higher premiums for gas, groceries, housing, insurance, Healthcare and everyday expenses that are continually rising. Customers are already under pressure for the cost of living. Electricity rates are already very high, and we cannot afford to have anymore increases!

Thank you,

Marsha McAndrew
